Speaking of the Air Line Railroad depot, the Mountaineer says: "The vexed question of the location of this depot is now definitely setuled. It will be in the lower part of the old 'race tract,' something under one mile from the courthouse. About sixteen lines for the road had been run through this city by the engineers, and all except the one selected were found impracticable. As it is, we are fortunate in getting the depot so near the centre of the city, for it will be great trouble and expense to the company and contractors to leave fered.

An Irisbman named Peter McGovern, says the Chester Reporter, was run over by the down passenger train at Chester on yesterday morning. We learn that he got aboard the train at Lewis's Turnout, seven miles above Chester, under the influence of liquor, and, in

From the same pater we also learn that an order was received there on Friday last from department hear gravitors at Louisville, Kentucky, for the troop of cavalry at this post to proceed at once to autherfordton, North Carolina. In obedience thereto, the troop under the command of Captain V. K. Hart, about seventy strong, moved off on Sunday morning, taking the road via Blairsville as the most direct route. This order was occasioned by the small circumstance of some fifty disguised men having gone into Rutherfordion about ten days, or rather nights, ago, and having gone through a Republican printing office, putting it in such condition that another paper would not soon issue from its press. They also at the same time took out a Mr. Justice, an ex-member of the Legislature, and gave him a pretty severe thrashing. Hammond, acting coroner, it appears that the deceased went into the pond for the purpose of bathing, and just previous it his entrance into the water he was cautioned by a white man on the opposite bank not to venture, as the water was quite deep and the deceased could not swim. He disobeyed the injunction, and before assistance could be rendered him, sank the third time out of sight. The millpond was drawn off, and the body was discovered on Sunday morning. The verdict of the coroner's jury was accidental drowning, in accordance with the facts above recited. The deceased was buried at Mount Taber, with military honors. He was a member of the colored militia." During the vielent thunder storm that prevailed about here on last Friday evening, a little more lightning than the machines are expected to entertain, was conducted by the wires into the telegraph office. Fortunately no one was in the office at the time. The window frame through which the wires pass was set on fire, but was exinguished in a few moments without any damage being done. Mr. Robert S. Bruns, of Charleston, deputy grand master of South Carolina, was the orator. Of his address the Intelligencer says: "The address of Bro. Bruns was a beautiful illustration of Maconry as a system of morality and religion, founded upon principles emanating from the source of all Light and Truth, and widening, expanding and extending as a mighty river with the growth of ages and the progress of civilization. Incidentally, the history of Freemasonry was traced through successive centuries, from the Temple erected by Solomon and his associates down to modern times, and the character, objects and attainments of the civilized world, received brief consideration. To the intelligent Mason, this address was highly instructive and ent-ritaining, and its beautiful diction and smooth delivery entirely captivating to those fortunately with

The Mountaineer says: "Truly last Friday was a remarkable day for weather. The morning opened with a sweltering heat, and the day continued oppressively warm, the thermometer indicating a little over 92 degrees about midday. Towards evening, dark and ominous clouds obscured the sky, and very soon thereafter one of the heaviest storms we soon thereafter one of the heaviest storms we soon thereafter one of the heaviest storms we have experienced for years broke upon us. Rain, thunder, lightning, wind, seemed to have formed a partnership of angry strife. The wind roared as if a hurricane or tornado was rapidly approaching; the rain rushed down in slutces; the lightning, fiful, frequent and almost continuous. The Columbia Union, in speaking of the exercises of "Public Day," says: "The attendance was very smail, and shows that the old Carolina life is pretty much a thing of the past. One would think that if there had been any vitality at all in the old regime, sufficient stamma might have been left to sustain the honor and credit of this old State Institution; and all the more, since the officers of the university and its traditionary life remain undisturbed as from the beginning. Where are the alumni of the college and of the university? The alumni of the Northern colleges are clamoring at the gate of the alma mater, demanding to be heard in the management of several colleges; but those of the South Carolina College, where are they? Nearly a dozen represent all the life of the past. Here there can be no plea that the old life has been crushed out by quent, and almost continuous, lit up the surrounding space with a glare that gave increased awe to the succeeding darkness. Looking upwards, the observer could see, in the light of the pervading flashes of electricity, that the heavens were covered with angry-looking masses of cloud, scudding hither and thither, as it in search of rest. It seemed as if a general convision of the elehither and thither, as it in search of rest. It seemed as if a general convulsion of the elements had occurred. Fortunately, the damage wrought has not been as heavy as might have been apprehended. As it is, there has been some injury by the blowing down of oats, corn, &c.; a few trees have suffered also, and in some places the land was badly washed. Having had occasion, during the past week, to pass over the lower portion of the county, we had an opportunity of ascertaining the crop prospect. Wheat, we learned, will not yield a full half-crop; many fields, apparently very fine before harvesting, were found afterwards to be very poor. The oat crop will, perhaps, be a full average one. Corn and cotton were never more promising than at present. The people—men, women and chil-

Paris, June 30. The work of rejuvenating Paris is progressng. Fully sixty thousand masons are engaged in repairing the damaged buildings and erecting new ones. The city is also being horoughly disinfected.

The journals of Paris and Versailles express satisfaction at the success of the review at Long Champs. The Official Journal, commenting on the review at Long Champs, remarks that "we have shown Europe an army one hundred thousand strong, valorous and ably commanded, which has saved the cause of civilization. We have also called for two milliards of money, and been offered five milliards. The nation evidently recovers."

The new loan has been covered and the subscription lists closed. The amount desired has been subscribed for several times over. Even the peasants and servants have invested their savings in the loan. In the Assembly, yesterday, it was stated that, in the Ponyer Quartier, in less than six hours, the agents of the treasury collected four thousand five hundred millions francs for the new loan, of which Paris alone subscribed two thousand five hundred millions. The provinces have not all been heard from, and the total amount of subscriptions is not yet ascertained. The minister of finance, commenting upon the facts he stated, said: "This state of things enables the government to fulfil its engagements and to hasten the deliverance of the country. We shall not wait for the dates fixed by the treaty at Frankfort, but shall pay the indemnity in instalments."

Another strike of cabmen is apprehended. The correspondents of the London papers all agree that the review at Long Champs and the French loan were both successful. One writer says that the thought of revenge upon Germany is uppermost in the minds of Parisians, who still hope for an opportunity to readjust the frontier. It is reported that the difficulty between Greece and Turkey, arising from the appointment of Tricopis as Greek ambassador to Constantinople, and the refusal of the Porte to receive him, had been amicably arranged, and the two countries were now on good terms.

DEPARTURE OF THE POLARIS IN | THE BLUE NOSES ON THE TREATY.

Dr. Lanahan Sticks-The German Singing Festival-Another Church Scandal-How to Get up a Church Fair-Advent of a New Religious Daily

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.] NEW YORK, June 28. Captain Hall sailed from New York harbor to-day in search of the North Pole. . He took with him in his steamer, the Polaris, a carefully selected crew, most of them sailors inured to Arctic rigors by former voyages. Two scientific men and an Esquimaux squaw. The latter was brought from the frozen north when Hall returned from his last voyage, and has been his constant companion since. No other ladles will be allowed on board. The expedition will be absent at least two years and a half, and its chief expresses the determination to reach the exact centre of the pole or perish in the attempt. The Polaris is to cut its way as far north as convenience and safety will permit, and the explorers will proceed on sledges, probably a thousand miles, to the great open sea which Morton saw in Kane's expedition. They will carry boats with them, and launch into those waters over which no human being is known to have sailed before.

Will Hall succeed? There is much grave shaking of heads among the wise men of the Geographical Society. The attempt has been made so often before by sailors possessing quite as much courage, perseverance and enthusiasm as Hall, and has failed. It was only by a combination of fortunate circumstances that one man, (Morton) accompanied by an Esquimaux, succeeded in making the frightful trip to the Northern Sea and back. Nevertheless, Captain Hall does not doubt his ultimate triumph. He goes better prepared than any of his predecessors and has their experiences to profit by. If he gets through and back safely we shail probably know the truth about "Symes's Hole." Perhaps, it readers can remember the newspapers twenty years back, they will recollect the crazy fellow who got up the theory that the world is hollow inside, and its inner surface covered with continents and seas the same as out here. He lighted up this its inner surface covered with continents and seas the same as out here. He lighted up this enormous chamber with rays from the sun and moon which streamed through two holes, one in the North and the other in the South Pole. The philosopher's name was Symes, and the newspapers of the day had a great deal of fun over "Symes's Hole." Curiously encugh als wild phantasy has been revived by Professor William F. Lyon, of Boston, who has just published a book entitled "The Hollow Globe," in which he attempts to demonstrate scientif. which he attempts to demonstrate scientifi-cally that the world has an inner and inhabi-table surface. There was a grand procession on the Bowery on Sunday which gave native New-Yorkers an opportunity of witnessing the novel specific of men and women marching arm in arm through the public streets and singing occasionally as they went. On Monday there was competitive singing at Steinway Hall, eighteen societies contending for the prizes. A fresh church scandal is being ventilated in the courts. This time it is an Episcopal society which is made to suffer unpleasant notoriety—the particular sufferer being the famous Ritualistic Chapel of St. Albans. It seems that notwithstanding the chapel's reputation of having a rich congregation, it is sorely troubled at times with impecuniousness. A few years ago it was resolved to raise money by means of a church fair. A rich sister was needed to give the enterprise a proper_start, by means of a church fair. A rich sister was needed to give the enterprise a proper start, and the trustees persuaded Mrs. Eliza L. Conant to put up the money, and, as she says, act as treasurer. She further avers that she procured for the fair, on her own account, $3400 worth of goods, the express stipulation being that she should be reimbursed for that amount from the receipts. When the fair opened however to her astonishment, a Mrs. amount from the receipts. When the land opened, however, to her astonishment, a Mrs. Burtls, wife of one of the church wardens. was appointed treasurer, and she was obliged to play account mode. The bills for this $3400 worth of goods were afterwards paid by Mrs. worth of goods were atterwate part of his Conant, and then the trustees refused to make a return, according to promise. Hence the suit at law. The defence is that Mrs. Conant acted voluntarily in all she did for the lair, and contributed the $3400 worth gratuities.

lair, and contributed the $3400 worth gratuitously. The trustees could better have afforded to pay the amount than stand the scandal this affair brings upon the church.

Another victim of misplaced confidence is to appear on next Saturday. It is to be called the Daily Witness, and is to be published in the afternoon, price one cent. Of course it comes directly in competition with Ben Wood's News which has complete possession of the News, which has complete possession of the ground, and can hardly be driven from it at this day. The Witness, however, is to be conducted on new principles. In the first place it aucted on new principles. In the first piace it is to be a religious newspaper, and in the next place it will publish advertisements at the regular price of a penny a word. The experiment of establishing a religious daily was fully tried in the case of the World, eleven years ago. The projectors sank over $300,000 trying to make the people of New York take their news augar-coaled with niety. It was only news sugar-coated with plety. It was only when the paper changed hands and was made Democratic (which was equivalent to giving it over to Satan, in some people's opinion.) that it became a great paying concern. NYM.
